Hey
guys, I
not only set it to Windows
Basic
but used Windows
Vista
and a few other settings
the same

So
changed
back
to My Current
profile
and noticed that

that
selected for my background
"disappeared"
so I

Thanks

Reading
your replies you got I'm not sure what you're trying to accomplish.

Aero is just some dinky
gee wiz effect that Microsoft
hyped the crap out of that does next to nothing.
It's purpose is to make a window's
Title bar
semi-transparent allowing the contents of what's underneath in some other window to bleed through.
Unlike
Adobe's Flash which

Microsoft
dropped the ball as any person familiar with computer graphics will tell you. It's next to useless as implemented and causes text
underneath to usually appear muddy and often be unreadable, so what Microsoft
was thinking
with this "feature" is confusing.

As to what you're seeing, no clue what happened.
All I can tell you is when Aero is enabled it severely restricts what you can do with

Many in complained about the highlight feature in Aero where

making the especially some

This is just another in a long list of

made in Vista that seem the sake of something to justify the cost of

It's easy to see from your insultingly ignorant reply that you don't know what Aero is nor do you really use your computer in a stressful, productive manner.

Fact is, Ubuntu had this long before Vista with Beryl...

Sorry mr liar, but that 'flipping' cube is a toy...just like urbuttoo is just a toy...a real POS toy os for broke losers like you.

Um, the cube is only a small part of Compiz, formerly Beryl. It has everything that Aero has and more. And it has had it loooooooooong before Vista was a gleam in Steve Ballmer's conning eyes. Oops.

Snip ill informed drivel.

More of your lies?
Get lost troll!

Nope but you would have to have installed Ubuntu with Compiz to know and you're too stupid to install Ubuntu, much less Compiz. Anyone who has installed and used it knows that what I say is spot on.

Live with it, troll, MS innovates nothing and buys as much as it can because they aren't capable of doing it themselves, e.g., Yahoo and Beryl/Compiz.
