Linux
in these newsgroups
should be the
ones
to step
forward
and
help
people
out
when
it
messes
up
a
Windows
system.

IT,
didn't
do
anything
the
system,
IT,
did
EXACTLY
what
the
USER
told
it
to do.

You
can't
blame
the
s/w
under-informed
user

Re: Can someone please help me with this problem

tells
it
what
to
do.

Read
my
post
to
Urban,
because
it
applies
to
you
as
well.

The user
probably did this on advice seen
in THIS
newsgroup,
advice
propagated
by one of the few Linux trolls.

Alias in particular
never gives
the whole picture. If you people
are not prepared to support the aftermath of
your advice,
don't give
advice..

Re: Can someone please help me with this problem

Hey, dipshit, the OP could have gone to www.ubuntu.com and found the installation instructions. Telling people about Ubuntu does NOT come with the requirement to give support for free.

Alias

That's right.
Not so free anymore, is it ?
LOL.
Just kidding.

But from ubuntu.com, I didn't see dual boot instructions. Migrating to it exclusively...but they really seem to want to help you ditch Windows.

I typed "dual boot" in the Search field and got this:

<http://search.ubuntu.com/results2.html?cx=009650792990864903260%3A-lsdjshi1tu&cof=F>

Alias

I stand corrected.
But , I didn't search...I just clicked on the support link, then looked from there.
Kind of like a newbie maybe would.
I doubt they would do a search until it was too late.
Much like the OP.

Assuming everyone is as stupid and clueless as you are is a stupid assumption.

Anger and insults prove you "know" very little.
I have used ubuntu since Badger.
I just didn't turn into a zealot, or an ubuntard.
