

Re: Windows Mail Accounts, Outlook Identities

Source:

<http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/Vista/microsoft.public.windows.vista.mail/2009-02/msg01940.html>

- From: Georgy <guest@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx>
 - Date: Mon, 16 Feb 2009 00:52:01 -0600
-

Hi Gary

You seem to unravelled the nightmare of Vista– may I pick your brains on a similar issue. I use outlook (full version) mainly because I like to use the calendar – but like others I cannot set up alternative e-mails as before. I dont like to share a sent e-mail box nor spend time setting up rules so live mail option 3 seems the best ? I am not clear how this works with outlook as hotmail is also windows live mail ? I need to be able to send quite big files and do work from home on others Like Mitchell below I also have no idea why the associated business manager set up wizard comes up –every–time I open my mail ? BTW I am linked to an online provider who allows up to 5 e-mail accounts – these are both on their server before being downloaded to the default account and I have ticked the box for retaining a copy on line. The address is the pst folder and I cannot change that to an alternative hence the grief about accessing the two (or more) accounts at will

Mitchell;919953 Wrote:

I have implemented Gary's suggestion to use Windows Live Mail and two accounts. But occasionally the "Windows Mail" page comes up and we try to use it by mistake. I would like to get rid of Windowa Mail (uninstall?) but it does not show up on the uninstall list. How can I get rid of this annoyance?

—
Mitchell

"Gary VanderMolen" wrote:

Windows Mail does not have identities like Outlook Express did.
By default, all email from all accounts goes into the same

Re: Windows Mail Accounts, Outlook Identities

Inbox.

There are four different ways of changing that:

1. Use separate Windows user logins. That gives total privacy.
2. Use message rules to filter incoming messages into separate folders.
3. Upgrade to Windows Live Mail which has separate folders for each account, no rules needed: 'Mail – Windows Live'

(<http://get.live.com/wlmail/overview>)

4. Purchase an add-on called WMIDs:
'WMIDs' (<http://www.oehelp.com/WMIDs>)

Personally, I'd go for option 3, because unlike option 2, it also segregates copies of sent emails.

--

Gary VanderMolen, MS-MVP (Mail)

"mitchell" <bets@xxxxxx> wrote in message

<news:ejMX9X0WJHA.1532@xxxxxx> > > > >

Hello wise ones,
I have used Outlook Express for many years. I had several

Identities and could easily switch between them.

Now I have Windows Mail
(Vista) and I set up two accounts (one for me, one for Betsy).

Currently the email is stuck on Betsy's account. I cannot find a way to switch to my account. And all of "our" mail is coming to

Re: Windows Mail Accounts, Outlook Identities

her mailbox.

How can I again communicate independant
from my wife?

Mitch

PS I'm a rookie. This is my first use of a newsgroup.> >
> >

—
Georgy

.