Stuart please tell us more about your needs, so we can provide the best solution. That dose this administrators out to PCs have to do? and that kind of rights are required?

(With out know much about your environment)

The follow solution may can be of use for you. You may create a group called PC Admins or what ever you want. And assign this PC Admins group as local administrators for the computers. This can be done within a Group Policy by take use of the Restricted Groups at the follow location:
Computer Configuration\Windows Settings\Security Settings\Restricted Groups

If you have to delegate control of objects in an Active Directory to threes PC Admins I'm strongly recommend you to use Delegation of Control Wizard:

Step-by-Step Guide to Using the Delegation of Control Wizard:

Please feel free to post :) Have nice day!
