When I connect the HDD win2000 server which is already containing the data, in to the anothere Win2000 Server it detect the HDD after starting the computer. It get installed properly also. I was able to accessing from the network working fine. After some time I was not able to access it from the network. Once again I checked it with the Disk Management in Computer management. It was showing me Unknown on that Disk. Now I am not been able to access the disk. It is showing me Unallocated. Can some already come across with this problem.
