I am having a problem with Synchronising offline folders on a W2K laptop. The laptop is set up to synchronise the My Documents folder with the server. Also several other files and folders are set up to synchronise with another server. The problem is that this other server has now been decommissioned and is no longer connected to the network. Is it safe to just delete the affected files from the Offline files folder in Synchronization Manager? Also how will I prevent the laptop from searching for the old File and Print server on the network as this is slowing everything down on the laptop.

Any advice is greatly appreciated!
