I'm working on a network where all users log on to PC as Administrator (local machine) and log into a workgroup.

Workgroup is being upgraded to domain and I want new domain users to maintain settings. I know how to copy profiles. My question is this...will I encounter any problems if I copy local machine Administrator profile to new domain user profile (which will also be roaming profile)? I've tested on several machines with new domain accounts and don't see any problems yet.

Thanks for any input.
