I want to know if there's a way to download a complete set of Windows Update patches to be installed at a later date?

I want to reformat my computer hard drive and reinstall Windows 2000. For security reasons, I want to keep it offline and out of the internet. It will be used strictly for software development.

I want to download all the Windows Update patches at once from another computer (with internet) and then apply to this "offline" computer at a later date.

Is that possible?
