My PC keeps shutting down about every two minutes, even when I am in the middle of using it. When I hit the power button it comes back up in exactly the same place it left off, or after a minute of so it will come back up on its own.

Until yesterday it was going into hibernation in the same way so I went into the Power Options program in the Control Panel and disabled the hibernation mode.

I think it started after some MS automatic updates last week.

Is there a System Rollback-type option for Win 2000 like there is for XP (and if so, how would I get to it), or does anyone have any other suggestions please?

Thanks.
