Sorry, I have run out of ideas. Use folder names other than scripts, and check the Event Viewer.

I tried to create a folder called scripts on a mapped share on another system ==> that works.

I tried to create on \\problembox\c$ a folder called scripts ==> I get the same error.

scripts is not listed as a reserved word:

I got the LPT1 folder but no script folder...

I have no idea...

Why does two different disks, with different partitions have the same NTFS issue?

I can think of two reasons why this might happen:

a) There is a problem with your file system. If so then you should still be able to create a "scripts" folder on some networked drive.

b) There is a problem with Windows. If so then you should be able to create a "scripts" folder while working on a different machine like so:

net use Q: \\ProblemServer\TestShare

Re: can not create folder called scripts anymore

```
md Q:\Test\Scripts

You must, of course, start by creating the TestShare.

You should also determine if "scripts" has turned into a reserved word. You can do it like so from a Command Prompt:

md \\.\c:\scripts and
md \\.\c:\LPT1

If you type the commands correctly then you will get at least a folder called "c:\LPT1", and perhaps also "c:\scripts".

Thank you for your quick answer.

I tried to create a folder with the md command but I got the same result as with mkdir. I don't get any error messages but the folder is not there if you check with either windows explorer or dos command "dir".

I also tried to create the folder after rebooting into safe mode. Unfortunately I got the same results.

You can start a Command Prompt, then use this command:

md "c:\script"{Enter} or even better
md "c:\Friday\Script"{Enter}
```

The advantage of Safe Mode is that it only loads the programs that are part of your basic Windows configuration.

Re: can not create folder called scripts anymore

If you have some malicious code on your machine then it probably will not load in Safe Mode.

Thank you for your reply.

I tried to create a directory via windows Explorer ==> right click and mkdir. Both doesn't work unfortunately.

It is a production server why I can't reboot it into save mode now.

Which difference does it make for the folder/file creation. Are there other ways to create a directory I could try?

Thanks

Hello,

Since

Re: can not create folder called scripts anymore two days I realised on my windows 2000 server that every folder

called "scripts"
is disappeared and when I try to create a file or folder
called
"scripts",
doesn't matter in which directory,
I
get the following error
message:

Cannot
rename
New Folder:
file with the name you specified

Re: can not create folder called scripts anymore already exists.

Specify
different filename.

I did a search in the registry for "scripts",
I
killed every unknown
process, I
disabled
every unimportant
service, I
searched for alternate
NTFS
Streams, hidden
files,
Viruses
and Trojans... no success..

I still can not create a file
or folder
called
"scripts".

Re: can not create folder called scripts anymore

I
can create
"skripts,
"script"
e.g.
but no
"scripts".

I am really grateful for any suggestions.

There are several ways to create a new folder. You should report which method you used.

You should also try the same thing while in Safe Mode.
