I think you would be better served by posting your question to the experts in the microsoft.public.outlook.general newsgroup.

Hello All –

I recall some time ago coming across the shortcut–key sequence to open a link in an email message to be viewed inside the OUTLOOK browser. Since using XP more to support some customers who do, I cannot remember nor find any reference to the way this is done in the Office XP environment.

Any help you may be able to provide would be greatly appreciated, and I thank–you in advance for it.
