Hi Every body...

I'm running a W2k Server running routing and remote services to give access to the Internet to a small group of computers.

I'm trying to deny access from one of these computers to the web service(80 port) but it should have other services like mail (pop, smtp) up and running..

The main scope is this: The terminal opens the web browser and ask for www.google.com... What i want is to not let the browser receive or send web requests via the browser... but use outlook to check the email...

How can i do that..?
