Well, I suggest that you double click my computer then go to:

C:\Documents and Settings*(your profile name)*\Start Menu\Programs\Startup

And make sure that there is nothing here that is starting up that shouldn't. You should also check this place:

C:\Documents and Settings\All Users\Start Menu\Programs\Startup

If these don't help then I suggest you go to Start – Run and typr MSConfig:

This program will help you to see what is in your startup and disable it. You can even choose diagnostic and boot with minimal drivers and programs and then go back putting them back in place one at a time till you find the one that is causing you your issue.

After any of the above changes you will need to logout and back in to verify that your change was successful.

Hope this helps and have a nice day...

Best Regards,

Jody Atkins

| Forgive me if I've butted into the wrong newsgroup. I
| have searched everywhere for a solution to this
| annoyance. During startup, I get the usual desktop screen
| with my icons, but as the sys tray (?) loads (the tray in
| the bottom right corner of the screen), my documents
| superimposes itself over the desktop. Being slow to load,
| it takes about 10 seconds before I can x out to get back
| to desktop. Can anyone provide a solution???
