This is by design. Nothing to worry about.

"Permanent" TS CALs have an expiration date of 52-89 days after issuing. This is to avoid a situation where the license is permanently issued to a client, and therefore permanently lost when the client is discarded or re-installed from scratch.

The client will automatically try to renew the license, starting 7 days before the expiration date. If the client doesn't connect to the Terminal Server within this 7 day period, the license expires and is automatically returned to the Licensing Server.
