Is this a standalone computer (like a home computer) or a member of a domain (like a work computer)?

If a home computer, go to Control Panel>User Accounts and look at your user account. Is it a Limited or Computer Administrator type? If the latter, you have administrative privileges and can just install the program by double-clicking the installer.

If you need more help, go to this link to see what information you need to include in your next post (as well as the answers to my questions above):
