

Re: admin logon

Source:

<http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/WinXP/microsoft.public.windowsxp.basics/2006-08/msg01717.html>

- From: "iecus" <philly0128@xxxxxxxx>
 - Date: Sat, 19 Aug 2006 10:27:26 -0400
-

sorry still need this, replied to the wrong post.

I know it was a run command that got my windows login screen to always ask for the PW

"iecus" <philly0128@xxxxxxxx> wrote in message
<news:u0P5lr5wGHA.4140@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx>

never mind got it! thanks., did a search for .scf and add it.

"iecus" <philly0128@xxxxxxxx> wrote in message
<news:eBYh3J5wGHA.2432@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx>

someone gave me the answer to this question below and now that i was looking through the post to right it down and save it somewhere i see it wasn't attach to this post can someone please reply back on how to fix this. thanks

"iecus" <philly0128@xxxxxxxx> wrote in message
<news:uL4zw1IwGHA.724@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx>

Thank you to those who replied it WORKED!!!

iecus wrote:

hello folks, I'm not new to windows xp, but i had to do a new install. now my pc by default logs in under the administrator. when I created my user ID back it will allow me to switch and log off, but when i reboot or shut down, once it's back up even though the new user ID was made, it will log me in as administrator, or it will prompt me and said that something is wrong w/ the admin pw and to contact the admin any thoughts on why this is happening?

Re: admin logon

thank you.