

Re: More fbreseal strange behavior

Source:

<http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/WinXP/microsoft.public.windowsxp.embedded/2005-02/0181.html>

From: Mark K Vallevand (mark.vallevand_at_unisys.com)

Date: 01/28/05

Date: Fri, 28 Jan 2005 13:23:33 -0600

Do you have reseal phase set to 0? (I assume you do, but it doesn't hurt to check.)

This was my problem moving to SP2. When the SLX was upgraded to SP2, the component settings were not carried forward. You need to make those setting changes to the upgraded SLX again. (I hope you documented everything!) I missed the reseal phase.

--

Regards.

Mark K Vallevand

"Slobodan Brcin (eMVP)" <sbrcin@ptt.yu> wrote in message news:OnC4BHWBFHA.4072@TK2MSFTNGP10.phx.gbl...

> Desi,

>

> I was thinking about your problem and if you are using NTFS I know what > problem you experience:

> If it is following problem switching to FAT will solve it.

>

> You have not accurately described problem and I did not paid enough > attention :-(

> You don't have exactly new account aren't you?

>

> If you can use same user name but you have new folder as you described it.

> "UserName.ComputerName" this mean that during the logon procedure with > user (that you try to log on) credentials windows can't > access its regular folder since you do not have permissions any more.

> In that case both SP1 and SP2 will create new folder based on default > credentials with name that you saw.

>

> So before you do cloning (after fbreseal) make sure that your local > administrators can access that folder. And that you account is > administrator.

>

> Best regards,

> Slobodan

>

> PS:

> Do whole test on FAT it should work since there are no securuti attributes > on folders.

>

>

> "Desi" <richardsd@tycoelectronics.com> wrote in message > news:1106929213.852655.243150@c13g2000cwb.googlegroups.com...

microsoft.public.windowsxp.embedded: Re: More fbreseal strange behavior

```
>> I agree - The UI mods are gone because the user account is not the same >> one that I made the mods in. That's no problem, but the fact that I >> have a new user account is definitely a problem. The other thing is >> that I could not log in as the original "Administrator" after sealing >> the image. :( This seems like fbreseal messed up the SID changing to >> me...
>>
>> I'm working on the setupapi.log - I'll report later.
>>
>> Regarding wmp.inf - I rebooted the pre-fbreseal image many many times, >> but did not receive the message about wmi.inf. I suspect that the "New >> Hardware" has to do with either video or sound, and it tries to >> reference wmp.inf to update the media player...
>>
>>
>> Desi
>>
>
>
```