It looks OK.

I need the .NET 1.1 sp1, so it was installed from the valueadd directory some time ago.

I installed the latest set of security updates.

Existing slx files flag the .NET 1.1 sp1 and ASP.NET sp1 as having upgrades available. Upgrading them leaves them in an odd state, so I didn't save the changes. I upgraded everything except .NET 1.1 sp1 and ASP.NET sp1. Everything looks OK for existing slx files.

For new slx files, you can add .NET 1.1 sp1 and ASP.NET sp1, and it seems to get the correct versions, but they are marked as having an upgrade available. It seems like the correct versions are built.

It still worries me that the database is mixing up .NET 1.1 and .NET 1.1 sp1. Are these supposed to be distinct components or different version of the same component? It seems like both. They are mutually exclusive; that makes sense.
