

Re: Hotmail w/IE 6.028 xpsp2

Source:

<http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/WinXP/microsoft.public.windowsxp.general/2004-03/18862.html>

From: Malcolm (malcolm34465_at_NOTyahoo.com)

Date: 03/19/04

Date: Fri, 19 Mar 2004 19:33:00 GMT

On Wed, 17 Mar 2004 20:05:17 -0500, "PA Bear" <PABear@mvps.org> wrote:

>It's due to your settings in IE Tools>Internet Options>Advanced>Security, >and possibly at Tools>Internet Options>Security> [zone in which you're >logging on to Hotmail] > Custom Level.
>
>Treat Hotmail, MSN and .NET Passport as Secure Sites, requiring that your >computer be able to negotiate SSL protocols when logging in, so any of these >third-party applications may be interfering (as well as hijackware):
>anti-virus, firewall, anti-spam tools, "system" tools (NSW, NIS, anything by >McAfee). The best approach would be to disable all of them and, assuming >Hotmail then works properly, re-enable each application in turn, by itself >with no others running, to see which one or which combination is causing the >problem. If the machines are on a network, that's another area to consider >when troubleshooting.

Yep that solved the problem, thanks for the help.

Remove "NOT" from email address to reply via email"

Later,
Malcolm