

Re: Restoring dual boot 98SE / XP Pro

Source:

<http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/WinXP/microsoft.public.windowsxp.general/2004-03/6867.html>

From: Rick \ (rick_at_mvps.org)

Date: 03/07/04

Date: Sun, 7 Mar 2004 17:59:11 -0500

Hi,

For the identifier, just list the operating system that folder is loading.
The rest can be left blank.

--

Best of Luck,
Rick Rogers aka "Nutcase" MS-MVP - Win9x
Windows isn't rocket science! That's my other hobby!
<http://mvp.support.microsoft.com/>
Associate Expert - WinXP - Expert Zone
www.microsoft.com/windowsxp/expertzone
Win98 Help - www.rickrogers.org
"Steven Fleischer" <sfleischerSPAMLESS@NOSPAMemail.com> wrote in message news:404B846C.4000309@NOSPAMemail.com...
> Rick \ "Nutcase\" Rogers wrote:
> > Hi,
> >
> > Use bootcfg /rebuild
> >
>
> Rick,
>
> bootcfg /rebuild did not give me the dual boot menu back.
>
> Here's what happened with bootcfg /rebuild:
>
> Scanning all disks for Windows installations.
> The windows installation scan was successful.
> Total identified Windows installs: 1
> [1]: D:\windows
> Add installation to boot list? (Yes/No/All): Y
> Enter load identifier:
> Enter OS load options:
> D:\windows
>
> Since I didn't know what those last items were all about, I exited the > setup. The computer directly booted into Win 98, no boot menu. I > started from the XP CD again and used fixboot to re-enable the boot > menu, but now there's a third blank line to choose from in the OS menu > and Win 98 won't start again.
>
> Not sure what to try next.
>
> Steve Fleischer

microsoft.public.windowsxp.general: Re: Restoring dual boot 98SE / XP Pro

>