

Re: URL's

Source:

<http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/WinXP/microsoft.public.windowsxp.general/2004-04/21546.html>

From: Ron Sommer (rsommer_at_nospam.ktis.net)

Date: 04/24/04

Date: Sat, 24 Apr 2004 06:06:14 -0500

"Paul Smith" <Paul@nospam.demon.co.uk> wrote in message news:ukfcjkeKEHA.3216@tk2msftngp13.phx.gbl...

> "Allan" <anonymous@discussions.microsoft.com> wrote in message > news:3ae001c429e7$75d64f60$a101280a@phx.gbl...

>> I am wondering, maybe this is not even the right place to >> bring it up, but how do you change a url so that it may >> not be so long and say to be able to just say "click >> here". I run into this alot when trying to send url's to >> people and they seem to be really long ones and was just >> wondering if there was an easy way of just changing the >> url to say click here.

>

> <http://tinyurl.com/> is pretty good, they'll basically give you a shorter

> URL, and then when the user clicks it automatically forward.

>

> If you mean to do it with HTML, in say an HTML e-mail the code would be:

>

> <http://www.smirnov.demon.co.uk/> > <http://www.doom3portal.com/> A Doom 3 fansite. >

<http://www.dasmirnov.net/articles/sp2preview.htm> Service Pack 2 is coming! >> Replace nospam with smirnov to reply by e-mail >>>