

Re: Pop-up blocker

Source:

<http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/WinXP/microsoft.public.windowsxp.general/2004-06/27310.html>

From: DILIP (dilipr_at_#>*) Date: 06/27/04

Date: Sun, 27 Jun 2004 18:26:37 +0530

I don't need another one, but I'm trying this for a while since you recommend it. I'll get back to you on whether it's better or worse than Ad Muncher.

```
--
Replace the obvious with "hotmail"
"Crusty (-: Old B@stard :-)" <richardurbanREMOVETHIS@hotmail.com> wrote in message news:e3C$2MEXEHA.1036@TK2MSFTNGP10.phx.gbl...
> I use PopUpCop from http://www.popupcop.com/.
>
> It is "so much more" than just a popup blocker. Try it and see.
>
> It is one of those rare programs that I try and then pay for after a test.
> Wouldn't be without it!
>
> --
> Regards:
>
> Richard Urban
>
> aka Crusty (-: Old B@stard :-)
>
> "SSDD" <anonymous@discussions.microsoft.com> wrote in message > news:21c4901c45c0b$0c09a1d0$a301280a@phx.gbl...
> > Howdy all,
> >
> > I'm looking for suggestions on a great pop-up blocker.
> >
> > After trying a few different pop-up blockers, I'm now > > using the Google Toolbar (awesome to have google search
> > AND a pop-up blocker)
> >
> > It does a superb job at 90% of pop-ups.
> >
> > However, There are those pesky pop-ups that are more like > > a flash animation or something like that. The toolbar > > does not block those. Those are actually kind of sneaky > > because some of those animations fill more of a space > > than you assume they are, and you click them and it opens > > up a new link, basically making them the same as the evil > > pop-ups.
> >
> > I want to kill ALL pop-ups :)
> >
> > I'd prefer to find a free program, but wouldn't > > necessarily mind paying a few bucks for something decent.
```

microsoft.public.windowsxp.general: Re: Pop-up blocker

> > Any suggestions from experience?
> >
> > Thanks,
> >
> > SSDD
>
>