

Re: update/hotfix installation order

Source:

<http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/WinXP/microsoft.public.windowsxp.general/2004-06/28876.html>

From: Hilary Karp (hilarykarp_at_comcast.nospam.net)

Date: 06/28/04

Date: Mon, 28 Jun 2004 15:31:47 -0700

There is no particular order, that I know of, other than making sure SP1a is installed first. You can order a security CD free from MS that has all the updates through October of last year, then add the remaining. Here is some info:

"Order the Windows XP Service Pack 1a CD"

<http://www.microsoft.com/WindowsXP/pro/downloads/servicepacks/sp1/ordered.asp>

"Order the Windows Security Update CD"

<http://www.microsoft.com/security/protect/cd/order.asp>

After using the security CD here are some recent updates:

835732 (Sasser worm patch)

837009 (OE Cumulative)

832894 (IE Cumulative)

828741 (XP Cumulative)

828028 (ASN 1)

837001 (Jet Engine)

Vic Vega wrote:

> I need to apply some Windows XP updates that I've been negligent in not > installing before now.

>

> Is there any importance in installing the updates in any of KB number, > security bulletin number, or chronological order? Are the installers for > the updates intelligent enough to not overwrite files that are > newer/replaced by a later update?