I get the following message every 2 minutes on the dot:

RUNDLL

Error loading winupd.dll

The specified module could not be found.

or sometimes the winupd.dll is wincore.dll

This error message started yesterday afternoon and as of today the message pops onto my screen literally every 2 minutes. It does not hinder useage of my computer (there is no slowing or anything) it's just EXTREMELY annoying to have this error pop up every 2 minutes and then click ok to make it go away.

I have been all through MS support areas with no help found. I have searched the Internet for help on this specific problem and have found no solutions. I have updated Norton and run it and have no viruses. I have updated Spybot and have run it and have no perpetrators. I have not loaded any new software recently, nor visited any websites I do not normally visit. I did nothing out of the ordinary (that I'm aware of) to open my computer up to a problem from the outside.

I would appreciate any help or suggestions! Thank you!
