Let me fire up the old crystal ball. While I'm waiting for it, why don't you at least tell us the exact error message you get. We need that to know what module may have caused your issue. Also have you tried the /i switch when attempting to load a library. for instance you go>start\run and type in regsvr32 /i browseui.dll Note the space after regsvr32 and the /i See if that does it for you. browseui.dll is an example only (although a valid dll) you would put in what every you are attempting to load. }:-~)
