i have windows xp, hp pavilion 553x, hp psc 2110 all-in-one printer, scanner, copier.

i am missing an address bar on internet explorer tool bar and also one on the desktop tool bar . seems like they both vanished at the same time, about 3 months ago. i can't think of any changes I have made to my computer except downloading Adware and Spybot and using the paid versions of both about 1 month ago.

i have a paid for smart explorer and it does have an address bar. I have had this for nearly a year. I have to use it to go anywhere online.

I have been online with hp techs for two days each time about 2 hrs sessions and they cannot fix this.

here is what they have had to try.

download XP_Toolbar fix , which did not work.

Next typed C:\windows\inf found the IE file and re-installed, restarted computer again No address bar day two.

she had me try the XP_toolbar fix, didn't work.

then she had me do a registry backup then go to regedit, hkey_current-user folder, software, microsoft, Internet Explorer, toolbar, of the 3 sub keys Explorer, ShellBrowser and webbrowser, shellbrowser had and entry for ItBarLayout and I deleted that and restarted machine. she felt that the deleted value would automatically restore any missing bars in Internet Explorer.

I have norton antivirus, adware and spybot. run norton twice a week, adware and spybot every two day.they are all updated.

plus I have a Virus blocker with my Server that catches it before it gets to my email.

I have done sfc /purgecache and sfc /scannow.

address Bar is checked in the view option in IE.

i have done scans for Sasser and MS Blast worms and system is clean.

please direct me to the correct newsgroup if no one can help me here. I'm a newbie to newsgroups.

thanks
