

Administrator Logging on

Source:

<http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/WinXP/microsoft.public.windowsxp.general/2004-10/10809.html>

From: Driver (Driver_at_discussions.microsoft.com)

Date: 10/10/04

Date: Sat, 9 Oct 2004 17:53:04 -0700

Hi,

I've got a question about logging on as the administrator. I am using XP home SP2. When I am logged on as owner I log off and hit ctl-alt-delete twice to go to the old style log-on box, I type in "administrator" with no password as there is no admin password set, I hit ok and get the following message "Unable to log you in because of an account restriction." My questions are: what account restriction and how do I get around this? I am the only user on this computer and I own it. Who or what put the restriction on and why? Thanks

--

Driver