

Re: You give MVPs a bad name

Source:

<http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/WinXP/microsoft.public.windowsxp.general/2004-10/11709.html>

From: Steve N. (me_at_here.now)

Date: 10/10/04

Date: Sun, 10 Oct 2004 19:37:42 GMT

Carey Frisch [MVP] wrote:

> Steves's comment: "His record speaks for itself..."

>

> Carey's comment: "Thank you for acknowledging my record!"

That's not YOUR record. That is a goal you are supposed to try to live up to. In your mind do you really equate yourself to such a lofty position as described below? If so, then you truly ARE delusional, because your posting record here, in THIS newsgroup, sure says something different, and in case you haven't noticed I'm not the only one saying so, either.

Too bad you can't seem to quite hit the mark here, but keep trying. I have actually seen you do the job right a time or three and I've even said so in your defense in the past, so I know you can do it.

Too bad you also continuously skirt the issues brought before you and can never admit when you have been wrong. That, above all, troubles me the most.

Look, Carey, I'm not really trying to attack you personally, but dog-gone it, you have got some really bad habits and I and others have tried in various ways to point them out to you. Are you really so dense and/or egotistical to summarily dismiss such criticisms without considering that some of them may actually have valid points that you might be able to learn something from and (heaven forbid!) actually IMPROVE your performance here? Come on! Nobody can possibly be that arrogantly egotistical to believe they are as perfect as you apparently believe yourself to be. No one is above reproach, not even you.

I dare you to be honest.

Steve

>

> Microsoft MVP (Most Valuable Professional) Program Focus:

Re: You give MVPs a bad name

microsoft.public.windowsxp.general: Re: You give MVPs a bad name

- >
- > "The MVP Program is focused on relationships to and with customers via
- > online and offline communities. The program celebrates our best, most
- > active customers who have demonstrated a technical passion and willingness
- > to share their expertise with others."
- >
- > "Microsoft's Most Valuable Professionals (MVPs) are recognized, credible,
- > and accessible individuals with expertise in one or more Microsoft products
- > who actively participate in online and offline communities to share their knowledge