I labored the issue to get certain points across, Carey finally got what I meant and was an honorable man about it, for which I thanked him. Tom apparently wanted to keep at it. If you'd have been paying attention you'd know that Carey apologized, I apologized for my back-handed way of getting his attention, we both decide to drop it and move on.

This had nothing to do with getting the "last word in". I wanted to make it clear the issue has been resolved as far as I was concerned.

No, he said he didn't know what the word meant. I didn't either so I looked it up. I doubt Carey felt insulted by me posting it.

You could ask him yourself and while you're at it ask him if he want's you to keep insulting me in his "defense".

Maybe you could find something better to do, like learn some new words yourself, instead of making up immature insults with the F word in them.
