If you want to suggest to someone that they are backward, as Dlip is from India, and you told him that he and his country are so backward they haven't discovered 98 yet.

Still an Indian called us convicts yesterday (on SMH's live cricket coverage 3rd test). So it's 1 All.

But then I complained to the Herald last week over them publishing a mention of Indians as curry munchers (SMH's 2nd test coverage).

So it's 2 to ugly Australians vs 1 for Indians. Unfortunately the one with the highest score loses.

If you read the article it is not a new operating system but one written a few years ago. Further there are lots of experimental operating systems. I find it credible that such a thing exists. But if programs aren't written for an OS then noone want it.
