

Re: wuts so good about sp2??

Source:

<http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/WinXP/microsoft.public.windowsxp.general/2004-11/8943.html>

---

From: Alias (alsoknownas_at_maskedandanonymous.com)

Date: 11/13/04

Date: Sat, 13 Nov 2004 10:24:42 +0100

"keisuke" <keisuke@discussions.microsoft.com> wrote

: well i luvd linda b's idea. i thought they were the best...but slowjet, im
: sorry to say but do you worship microsoft or something?? by the way, my
: computer is brand new with a 250gig hd and its god pretty good stuff; i paid
: over a 1000$. how can sp2 be another os? and thereslike 1 out of a million
: programs that have fixed their bugs in their program. i think it'll be smart
: to install sp2 in about 6 months...

SP 2 will not change one iota in 6 months. If you want a problem free installation of SP 2, format and do a clean install of XP, clean up/chckdsk/defrag and immediately install SP2 from the CD and then clean up/chckdsk/defrag again. Then install your programs and do a clean up/chckdsk/defrag after each install of large programs such as Office and after two or three small programs such as AdAware. Then install your devices. I have done this on many computers and, so far, every single one of them is humming like a bee.

Alias

:
: "keisuke" wrote:
:
: > i have a router, a good virus program, and i don't even use the windows
: > firewall, what is so good about sp2?? there seems to be alot of problems with
: > compatibility with other programs, and i have a startup problem or a freeze
: > every so often. most of my friends don't have sp2, and they don't seem to
: > have any issues... what are the consequences of uninstalling it??