Ron, Will it hurt to delete it? Sorry, I am not to swift on this stuff!!!
Also, how do I get the welcome screen not to start? Before when I turned on my computer, it came right up to my desktop. I never put in a password because no-one has access to my machine but me and my husband. I don't want to do anything that will mess up my computer. One more thing, I checked into old files and I found that the asp.net was put on the same date that I installed my printer and the next day is when I did an update from microsoft.com. Thanks so much for helping me.
