

Re: Windows XP lockdown

Source:

<http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/WinXP/microsoft.public.windowsxp.general/2005-01/12655.html>

From: WTC (bcrawfordjr(remove)_at_hotmail.com)

Date: 01/16/05

Date: Sat, 15 Jan 2005 16:17:04 -0800

Use a firewall that allow access to that site and nothing else.

--

William

"DP" <DP@discussions.microsoft.com> wrote in message news:CAFAFFDF-40C9-424B-A81A-8678100B95AF@microsoft.com...

>I have a client who has several retail sites. He wants to lock down web > browsing. Considering these are stand alone windows XP Pro machines, how > go i > configure the security policy so that the user can only access the company > home page and nothing else?

> thanks in advance.

>

> Dp