

Re: Pirated XP, means-test everyone and every product with "income

Source:

<http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/WinXP/microsoft.public.windowsxp.general/2005-01/19797.html>

From: Linda B (someone_at_microsoft.com)

Date: 01/25/05

Date: Mon, 24 Jan 2005 16:44:45 -0800

See my earlier posts if you require explanation. Or don't; I certainly don't care.

"XS11E" <xs11eNO@SPAMyahoo.com> wrote in message news:Xns95E8B28D26E02xs11eyahoocom@207.46.248.16...

> "Linda B" <someone@microsoft.com> wrote in > news:#XtuvNnAFHA.2572@TK2MSFTNGP10.phx.gbl:

>

> > Alias, you are needlessly confrontational, but you have a good > > point -- buying one copy of the OS and installing it on all five > > of my hypothetical computers at home is doing Microsoft no harm > > whatsoever.

>

> *If you bought the required five copies, they'd sell four copies more.
> How do you figure you've done them "no harm whatsoever"? You've stolen > an amount of money equal to the price of those four copies, if you can > justify that in your own mind fine but you'd still be a thief.*

>

>

>

>

>