

RE: can not browse internet

Source:

<http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/WinXP/microsoft.public.windowsxp.general/2005-01/4864.html>

From: Adrian QPC (AdrianQPC_at_discussions.microsoft.com)

Date: 01/06/05

Date: Thu, 6 Jan 2005 06:37:01 -0800

Hi Wayne

Are you trying to create the dial up for testing to connect to AOL?

"wayne" wrote:

> *I was not trying to create another AOL dial up just a normal dial up for > testing I do not believe this to be an issue with AOL or the modem I believe > this to be a windows issue
>
> "Adrian QPC" wrote:
>
> > Hi Wayne, not sure where you are in the world but in the UK you cannot > > manually create a connection for AOL. It MUST be done from one of their > > CD's. This is because they are an Internet CONTENT provider, not a service > > provider, as I understand it you connect to AOL via a VPN connection not a > > dial up connection. Hope this helps and I stand to be corrected by anyone > > that knows better than I.
> >
> > Regards
> >
> > Adrian.
> >
> > "wayne" wrote:
> >
> > > windows XP sp1 using AOL 8 and IE6
> > >
> > > computer dials up and connects to internet but will not browse internet thru > > > both AOL8 and IE6 receive a page can not be displayed message. I can ping IP > > > addresses but can not ping a web address (www.msn.com)it give me an error > > > about the address is wrong check spelling and try again
> > >
> > > I have deleted winsock and winsock2 in the reg and reinstall TCP/IP for the > > > NIC for some reason AOL dialup does not show in network connections.
> > >
> > > if you try to set up a new dial up connection thru the network connection > > > wizard, select create a connection, connect to internet, set up manually*

microsoft.public.windowsxp.general: RE: can not browse internet

> > > "connect using dial-up modem" is grayed out. I have uninstalled the modem and > > > reinstalled it. I have ran SFC (system file checker) no errors