

Re: bootvid.dll

Source:

<http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/WinXP/microsoft.public.windowsxp.general/2005-02/1242.html>

---

From: Sleepless in Seattle (jonah\_at\_guest.com)

Date: 01/27/05

Date: Thu, 27 Jan 2005 19:47:34 +1300

Return for service or replacement.

--

Jonah

"jeffrey" <jeffrey@nospam.okinawa.com> wrote in message
news:OWPjWtDBFHA.2572@tk2msftngp13.phx.gbl...

> Hi,

>

> Having an interesting problem on a new computer. Its a Dell Inspiron > 700M, brand new out of the box, first time start-up, it began then > nothing, blank screen, had to hold the power button for it to turn off.
> Tried again, then got the to basic setup screen, did all I needed and the > comp worked fine for a while. I did the win updates, configured it like I > configured the 20 other 700M's, now was changing from the admin account to > finish setting up the user account and the system froze.

>

> I took out the CD-RW/DVD and battery pack, tried a reboot. I reseated the > hard drive then tried again and it started up. Logged in as admin, then > logged out to log in as the user, system froze again with a blank screen.

>

> Did a cold reboot and finally got a BSOD:

>

> DRIVER_IRQL_NOT_LESS_OR_EQUAL

>

> Technical information:

> *** STOP: 0x000000D1 (0xC1FF33F7,0x00000002,0x00000000, 0xF7A0FE30)

>

> *** BOOTVID.dll - Address F7A0FE30 base at F7A0F000, DateStamp 3b7d8345

>

> it has its other stuff like check new hardware or software is properly > installed, etc.....

>

> started a google search on the BOOTVID.dll and the DRIVER_IRQL..... but > wanted some of your opinions as well

>

> Jeff

>