

Re: sharing

Source:

<http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/WinXP/microsoft.public.windowsxp.general/2005-02/17836.html>

---

From: Gordon (gordonbp1\_at\_yahoo.co.uk.invalid)

Date: 02/15/05

Date: Tue, 15 Feb 2005 17:27:47 +0000

kristopher wrote:

> *I want to share my files with only two guy on my network. When I add them to > my permission list they not only have access to my shared files over the > network but can come and login my computer and do whatever they want. Is > there a way to make accounts which are only good over the network and not at > the workstation it self?
> running Windows xp pro sp2
>
> thanks, > kristopher*

Presumably you have a peer-to-peer network and not a Domain? If so, no you can't, as all security information is held locally on each machine, and so the account you are sharing with actually resides on your machine as well.

--

Interim Systems and Management Accounting
Gordon Burgess-Parker
Director
www.gbpcomputing.co.uk