

microsoft.public.windowsxp.general: Re: XP home version/word perfect/kanji show up as ????

Re: XP home version/word perfect/kanji show up as ????

Source:

<http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/WinXP/microsoft.public.windowsxp.general/2005-02/19950.html>

From: Steve Shattuck (steve_at_shattuck.net)

Date: 02/18/05

Date: Thu, 17 Feb 2005 19:37:56 -0500

"niwashikun" <niwashikun@discussions.microsoft.com> wrote in message news:964E9011-2CC3-4F74-80E8-3147A8D468FD@microsoft.com...

> I have XP home version. I enabled the east asian support per info found > here.
> *When I try to type in Japanese in a word perfect document, the > romaji/hiragana shows up off the page in the upper left corner (floating > text
> bar) and when I hit the space key it changes to kanji as it should.*
>
> *However when I hit return to accept the kanji, instead of displaying the > kanji on the document, question marks are displayed. I went into > tools/language but there wasn't a Japanese option displayed to select.
> Does anyone know of a way of overcoming this??*

You really should get support for WordPerfect at www.corel.ca, but the answer is that Asian languages use UNICODE True Type fonts which WordPerfect doesn't support.

--

._

(_

__)teve www.steve.shattuck.net steve@shattuck.net