

Re: Installing new motherboard

Source:

<http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/WinXP/microsoft.public.windowsxp.general/2005-02/26991.html>

From: Leythos (void_at_nowhere.lan)

Date: 02/27/05

Date: Sun, 27 Feb 2005 14:04:23 GMT

On Sun, 27 Feb 2005 11:52:54 +0100, Alias wrote:

>
> "Tom" <noway@nothere.com> wrote
>>
>> "Leythos" <void@nowhere.lan> wrote
>
>>> On Sat, 26 Feb 2005 13:39:58 -0700, Bruce Chambers wrote:
>>>
>>>> On the MS site, they clearly explain that >>>> they define the "Computer" as the motherboard – what's so hard about >>>> understanding MS's definition as it relates to their licensing?
>>>>
>>>>
>>>> By that reasoning, we must all starting believing that the world is >>>> flat, just because there's a web site that says so.
>>>> (<http://www.flat-earth.org/>) Something posted on Microsoft's web site >>>> is irrelevant. The only documentation/agreement/contract binding upon >>>> the consumer is the EULA. If Microsoft really wants the OEM license to >>>> be bound to any single specific hardware component, they need to change >>>> the EULA.
>>>>
>>>> I can only restate what is listed on the MS site concerning OEM software, >>>> that MS considers the computer to be the motherboard – and if you think >>>> about it, the most descriptive/defining part in every computer system is >>>> the motherboard.
>>>>
>>>>
>>>> Are people agreeing to the website to get their product to function, or >>>> the EULA in the software?
>>>>
>>>>
>>>> Notice that back pedaling Leythos won't quote the URL because it doesn't >>>> apply to an End User.

No Alias, I "didn't" quote the site by providing the URL because I've been there several times, even posted the information about it, and you've said you won't read it since it means you have to register to see it. As it's microsoft.public.windowsxp.general: Re: Installing new motherboard fairly obvious to anyone that really cares or doesn't have some anti-ms agenda I don't see the need to go back to the site, search through the various links/pages and then paste another link you won't read. I didn't bookmark the site, I didn't really think it was that important since anyone that cares can find it too.

--

spam999free@rrohoio.com
remove 999 in order to email me