Hi

Hope someone can help. For some weird reason my computer has started being very selective about the pages it lets me look at. Not just pages on line but now for instance, it won't let the pop up window that appears with my scanner stay for more than a second before it's closed. I can't look at my bank details on line, as soon as I try to log in the page disappears. I can't look at some ebay pages, and a whole host of others although there appears to be no particular connection/reason. I have had to post this on the general discussion site because if I try to go onto the problem solving page, it shuts the page down.

It is starting to become extremely annoying!

Does anyone have any suggestions that may help?

Thank you in advance

Maxine
