Malke

I have NAV 2003 and I get no problems with the Security Center.

Hope this helps.

Well no one really knew how to get rid of the

there was a necessary file by that name and a worm and am in the process of loaded all that 40 gig of software and all of the patches etc in.

Question. Hopefully this is an easier one than my last two.
My Security Center DOES NOT recognise the Nortons Virus. What needs to be done to have Windows keep monitoring my Virus program. Seems my daughters is all GREEN and Windows monitors. I seem to only be able to select "I have have my own virus program and will monitor it myself"
and it shows that choice in Orange.
I know it is a petty thing, I just want it to be all Green and not just the first Two choices. It is that Male thing, that ego, that Bullheaded whatever. I don't want to be defeated by a silly color in a Choice column.

Security Center is only an "alerter". If you have an earlier version of NAV, there is a patch for the recognition on Symantec's website.
Otherwise, if your NAV is kept current (you've paid for your subscription and it is a fairly recent version - not earlier than 2004), you should just turn off the Security Center alert. NAV itself will alert you when it is time to renew your subscription.

Re: Started Over, Again

Open the Security Center applet in Control Panel and click on the left-side link, "Change how Security Center alerts me" and uncheck the alerts for AV.
