I realize that it will not appear in control panel when booted in Win2K. My remark was in response to Andrew's comment.

I have multiple boot choices for my computer, but now I cannot boot up XP Professional in any mode since performing my last automatic update on 05/06/05. The initial XP logo screen will come on during the boot, but then the screen will go blank and the computer hangs up.

The article I pointed out suggests several methods of working around this problem, which I have tried but have not been successful yet. I appreciate any suggestions you may have to offer.
