The Security Advisories are going to anyone that signs up for it, so I
WAS WRONG!

However, it seems the advisory pages aren't up and running yet! LOL!
The announcement beat the web pages!

Here is the relevant Advisory Info I received, hopefully the links will be up and running some time today:

 Title: Microsoft Security Advisory Notification
 Issued: May 10, 2005

Summary:

Microsoft is committed to continually improving the security communications we offer our customers. Today we are pleased to announce a pilot of a new offering, Microsoft Security Advisories, which aim to provide guidance and information about security related software changes or software updates.

The Microsoft Security Advisories are a way for Microsoft to communicate security information to customers on issues that may not be classified as a vulnerability and may not require a security bulletin. Each advisory will be accompanied with a unique Knowledge Base Article number for reference to provide additional information about the changes.

For more information, visit the following Web site:
<http://go.microsoft.com/fwlink/?LinkId=47489>

We will send a notification when an advisory is released or updated through this Microsoft Security Notification Service: Comprehensive Edition mailer.

Mea culpa!
