

Does SP2 need them?

Source:

<http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/WinXP/microsoft.public.windowsxp.general/2005-07/msg07971.html>

- From: Ying Tong <Ying_Tong@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx>
 - Date: Fri, 15 Jul 2005 12:25:03 -0700
-

Having searched under Temporary Internet Files – I have opened the Windows\system32\config\ one and found within a folder entitled Content.IE5 This contains over 4300 files in 4 coded sub folders, almost all of them ending with .XML, dated last year and now compressed. At 18MB of disk space does anybody know the answer to these questions:
Does SP2 need them?
What purpose are they stored there for?
Can these folders/files be deleted?

Please don't confuse this folder with the one where Temporary Internet files & cookies are stored.
Any help would be much appreciated.

Ying.
.

- Follow-Ups:
 - ◆ Re: Does SP2 need them?
◇ From: PA Bear
 - ◆ Re: Does SP2 need them?
◇ From: Will Denny
- Prev by Date: Re: Incorrect Function
- Next by Date: transferring files
- Previous by thread: Red X on desktop
- Next by thread: Re: Does SP2 need them?
- Index(es):
 - ◆ Date
 - ◆ Thread