

Re: Copying Bootable CD Disk to DVD Disk

Source:

<http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/WinXP/microsoft.public.windowsxp.general/2005-07/msg08217.html>

- From: "Ron Sommer" <rsommer@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx>
 - Date: Sat, 16 Jul 2005 06:54:30 -0500
-

Do a google search and you will find this.

<http://www.free-press-release.com/news/200409/1094274713.html>

--

Ron Sommer

"Howard" <Howard@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx> wrote in message
news:199BAA6E-ECD4-4C47-84FC-3857E50CC85E@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx

- > From the replys posted so far, I think we are losing sight of what the
- > objective or soultion should probably be !!
- >
- > In my opinion, the objective is to completely and accurately clone a CD
- > disk
- > unto a DVD disk. If you are able to clone the CD completely and accurately
- > unto a DVD similar to the copy disk to disk copy applications of the major
- > writing software vendors (Nero, Roxio, Sonic, etc) you will solve the boot
- > problem
- >
- > Whether or not the source disk is simple or complicated, bootable or non
- > bootable –
- > should not be a factor – if the source disk is completely and accurately
- > copied from start to finish you will end up with the same disk as the
- > source
- > and it will function the same
- >
- > I personally have yet to experience any problems whatsoever when using
- > their
- > CD to CD or DVD to DVD disk to disk copying applications regardless of how
- > simple or complicated, bootable or non bootable the source disk may have
- > been
- >
- > The solution to fixing the boot problem is not to try and figure out how
- > to
- > make a bootable DVD and the associated programs related to the boot
- > environment but rather simply how can you copy a CD completely from start
- > to
- > finish and burn it to a DVD
- >
- > Trying to figure out the proper booting files, drivers and the programs

Re: Copying Bootable CD Disk to DVD Disk

- > that
- > run from the boot environment would be a nightmare – probably only the
- > original software programmers would know the exact files, etc
- >
- > I really think the solution to this problem is strictly a copy problem and
- > has nothing to do with how simple or complicated the source disk might be,
- > bootable or nonbootable, etc, etc
- >
- > The problem is: (1) how can you copy a CD completely from start to finish
- > and burn it to a DVD or in the alternative (2) how can you find and copy
- > all
- > the associated boot files and related applications on the source CD disk
- > and
- > then burn them to a DVD
- >
- > Finally, it seems puzzling to me that none of the major software writing
- > vendors to my knowledge has devised a program to copy a CD to a DVD –
- > maybe
- > it simply can't be done ?? Something to do with the different media disks
- > ??
- >
- > Thanks in advance for any replys

• References:

- ◆ Copying Bootable CD Disk to DVD Disk
 - ◇ From: Howard
- ◆ Re: Copying Bootable CD Disk to DVD Disk
 - ◇ From: Lil' Dave
- ◆ Re: Copying Bootable CD Disk to DVD Disk
 - ◇ From: Howard

- Prev by Date: Re: Outlook and attachments, not OE
- Next by Date: Re: System crash when using Skype
- Previous by thread: Re: Copying Bootable CD Disk to DVD Disk
- Next by thread: Icons disappear
- Index(es):
 - ◆ Date
 - ◆ Thread