

RE: Trying to keep an eye on my kids

Source:

<http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/WinXP/microsoft.public.windowsxp.general/2005-08/msg00059.html>

- From: "Foxhole" <Foxhole@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx>
 - Date: Fri, 29 Jul 2005 15:52:04 -0700
-

You might try Net Nanny: <http://www.netnanny.com/p/page?sb=product>

Or just Google " internet monitor for children"

Hope this helps.
Foxhole

"CP" wrote:

- > Hello Everyone,
 - >
 - > I have 3 girls that share a XP Home system.
 - >
 - > They each have their own logon that is password protected. (I know their
 - > passwords)
 - >
 - > What I'd like to do is know the time(s) each day they logon, how much time
 - > they're spending each day on the PC and also what they're doing.
 - >
 - > I really need to know about actual activity with in their logon time because
 - > a lot of the times they'll logon, do something and then walk away from the
 - > PC without logging off. The session is active with no activity if that makes
 - > sense.
 - >
 - > Also, is there a way to log them out after a predetermined no-activity time
 - > frame, say 10 minutes? That way if what I want to do is possible I would
 - > think I would get a better idea of just how much time they're on the PC.
 - >
 - > Thanks.
 - >
 - > CP
 - >
 - >
 - >
 - .
-

RE: Trying to keep an eye on my kids

- Follow-Ups:

- ◆ Re: Trying to keep an eye on my kids

- ◇ From: NobodyMan

- References:

- ◆ Trying to keep an eye on my kids

- ◇ From: CP

- Prev by Date: Re: IE or Other App Appears To Lockup Then Release

- Next by Date: Re: What does 'System Restore' do?

- Previous by thread: Trying to keep an eye on my kids

- Next by thread: Re: Trying to keep an eye on my kids

- Index(es):

- ◆ Date

- ◆ Thread