

Re: XP Media to XP Pro

Source:

<http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/WinXP/microsoft.public.windowsxp.general/2005-11/msg01987.html>

- From: "Dave" <dave@xxxxxxx>
 - Date: Thu, 17 Nov 2005 19:07:22 -0600
-

well...they need to join a domain...so is the answer a complete reinstall?

"Ken Blake, MVP" <kblake@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx> wrote in message
news:%23H3Naj96FHA.4012@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx

> Dave wrote:

>

>> I had a customer go out and buy 5 new PCs after a few with Windows >> Media Center edition....is it possible to 'upgrade' to XP Pro without >> having to do a complete new install????

>

>

> That would be a downgrade, and the answer is no. Media Center is XP > Professional with a few extra features. The only thing in Professional not > in Media Center is the ability to join a domain. Unless your customer > needs that ability, there's no reason to change.

>

>

> --

> Ken Blake – Microsoft MVP Windows: Shell/User

> Please reply to the newsgroup

>

.

• Follow-Ups:

- ◆ Re: XP Media to XP Pro
◇ From: Ken Blake, MVP

• References:

- ◆ XP Media to XP Pro
◇ From: Dave
- ◆ Re: XP Media to XP Pro
◇ From: Ken Blake, MVP

Re: XP Media to XP Pro

- Prev by Date: Re: XP pro upgrade
- Next by Date: Re: Internet Explorer 6.0 with SP2
- Previous by thread: Re: XP Media to XP Pro
- Next by thread: Re: XP Media to XP Pro
- Index(es):
 - ◆ Date
 - ◆ Thread