

Re: Downgrade from Windows XP to 2000 Pro

Source:

<http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/WinXP/microsoft.public.windowsxp.general/2005-11/msg05447.html>

- From: "ms" <a@xxx>
 - Date: Sat, 26 Nov 2005 18:39:15 +0800
-

Maybe he could format a drive in Win2000 pro, put it in an enclosure, then copy it from his XP box to the external HDD.

"Yves Leclerc" <yvesleclercNOSPAM@xxxxxxxxxxxx> wrote in message news:ugGbbZf8FHA.3752@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx

> This does not seem to be possible since XP will automatically upgrade the > NTFS
> file system to its version. You may have to "network" a second PC onto > your > system and copy the files over to this second PCs before do the > "downgrade".
>
>
> On 25/11/2005 dubina@xxxxxxxx wrote:
>>Yes, but for example I cannot use FAT32 partition to copy data, since >>there are large (over 4 GB) files. So only way is perhaps copy data to >>NTFS 3.0 partition from WinXP directly and then access it from Win2K.
>>
>>Anton.
>>
>
> --
> ---
>
> Y.
>

-
- References:
 - ◆ Downgrade from Windows XP to 2000 Pro
 ◇ From: dubina
 - ◆ Re: Downgrade from Windows XP to 2000 Pro
 ◇ From: Shenan Stanley
 - ◆ Re: Downgrade from Windows XP to 2000 Pro

Re: Downgrade from Windows XP to 2000 Pro

◇ From: dubina

◆ Re: Downgrade from Windows XP to 2000 Pro

◇ From: Yves Leclerc

- Prev by Date: lost desk top
- Next by Date: Re: Activated twice on different machines!
- Previous by thread: Re: Downgrade from Windows XP to 2000 Pro
- Next by thread: cloning
- Index(es):
 - ◆ Date
 - ◆ Thread