

Re: HUGE GLC*.tmp Temp File

---

Source:

<http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/WinXP/microsoft.public.windowsxp.general/2005-12/msg04340.html>

---

- From: "Uncle John" <unclejohn@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx>
  - Date: Fri, 9 Dec 2005 18:05:08 -0000
-

It looks as if an application is creating log files. A few months ago Webroot Spycatcher did this and I stopped using it. You will have to delete the files and try to identify the application in running processes by monitoring the folder for the appearance of new ones.

--

Uncle John

"vinnirules" <vinnirules.1zsci6@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx> wrote in message news:vinnirules.1zsci6@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx

>

> Bryan McDaniel Wrote:

>> Has anyone else seen this issue. We are having numerous machines that >> are >> generating a huge temp file. They are named GLC***.tmp and located in >> C:\windows\temp. Where * are apparently random numbers. When I say >> huge I >> mean they take up 32 gigs on a 40 Gig Harddrive. I have come close to >> exhausting my resources and have not found a solution. I have searched >> the >> event logs of these machines, and there is nothing written around the >> same >> time the files were created. And as far as I can tell there is no >> software

>> that is common among these machines.

>>

>> Bryan McDaniel

>>

>> Technical Support Specialist II

>>

>> Information Systems

>>

>> Cardinal Health Systems Inc.

>>

>> (765)747-3939

>

> Did you ever determine what was causing the issue you originally posted > about? (c:\window\temp\glc***.tmp generating a huge temp file. Where * > are apparently random numbers. I am seeing the same thing in the env I > support. Please let me know.

>
>
> --
> vinnirules

.

---

• References:

◆ Re: HUGE GLC*.tmp Temp File

◇ From: vinnirules

- Prev by Date: Re: Transferring XP system files into a larger HDD
- Next by Date: Re: dual processor
- Previous by thread: Re: HUGE GLC*.tmp Temp File
- Next by thread: Re: Diaplay Backround, No text viewable.
- Index(es):
  - ◆ Date
  - ◆ Thread