

Re: 200GB Hard Disk

Source:

<http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/WinXP/microsoft.public.windowsxp.general/2005-12/msg07187.html>

- From: "Bob Eyster" <reyster1@xxxxxxxxxxx>
 - Date: Sun, 18 Dec 2005 11:15:29 -0500
-

Having a 10gig partition for the OS is asking for trouble in the long run. Even if you don't install programs on C: some file will get installed there anyway. The OS will use up 2gig or more depending on what parts of the OS you install.

Bob Eyster

"David" <rhinds_no_spam_@xxxxxxxxxx> wrote in message news:sp29q111b606jc2vlnqc98fsltmg16qoii@xxxxxxxxxxx
> On Sat, 17 Dec 2005 13:18:37 +0800, "Mk" <wintch@xxxxxxxxxx> wrote:
>
>>I have a 200GB hard disk. I intend to make a single partition. Is it >>recommended or any suggestion and what is the advantages ?
>>
> Ifollowed Fred Langa's advice <http://www.langalist.com> He reckons a 10Gig
> C: with only the operating system on it is the > way to go. Takes a bit to persuade Windows that you don't want a load of > junk on C: but makes imagining, back-ups and > defrags much easier and faster.
>
> David

-
- Follow-Ups:
 - ◆ Re: 200GB Hard Disk
 ◇ From: Jonny
 - ◆ Re: 200GB Hard Disk
 ◇ From: Gerry Cornell
 - References:
 - ◆ 200GB Hard Disk
 ◇ From: Mk
 - ◆ Re: 200GB Hard Disk

Re: 200GB Hard Disk

◇ From: David

- Prev by Date: Re: Hard drive free space
- Next by Date: Re: PC START UP
- Previous by thread: Re: 200GB Hard Disk
- Next by thread: Re: 200GB Hard Disk
- Index(es):
 - ◆ Date
 - ◆ Thread